

Digitization programme

The Muséum national d'Histoire naturelle, in partnership with the Bibliothèque nationale de France and the Biodiversity Heritage Library, wishes to digitize the articles it has published since 1802.

This digitizing project, supporting scientifically and cultural objectives, consists of all the articles published in the following journals: Adansonia, Anthropozoologica, Geodiversitas and Zoosystema and their respective past titles (such as the Bulletin du Muséum national d'Histoire naturelle).

The texts will be digitized and be available as a scanned image and an OCR file. They will be made available on the Internet, free of charge, and without any exclusive rights, through the Biodiversity Heritage Library site and through the Muséum's portal.

Consequently, we request authors who contributed to these articles, or their beneficiaries, to complete the attached authorization and to send it back to:

Muséum national d'Histoire naturelle
Service des Publications scientifiques
Numérisation des périodiques case postale 39, 57 rue Cuvier
F-75231 Paris cedex 05, France

Six months after the date of any item being published in these journals, and unless otherwise notified by the authors or their beneficiaries, the Muséum national d'Histoire naturelle will make these items available on the Internet.

After making the item available online, the Muséum national d'Histoire naturelle may withdraw any article or illustration in response to a claim by the author or his beneficiaries.

I, the undersigned, author or beneficiary of, authorize the Muséum national d'Histoire naturelle to digitize and publish on the Internet free of charge:

the whole of my contributions to (journal title)

the whole of my contributions to (journal title), except the articles mentioned in the list here attached.

This authorization is valid for the duration of the rights in the publication and uses are strictly limited to those mentioned above.
